

A rare case of giant lower abdominal swelling diagnosed as peritoneal simple mesothelial cyst

Setu Ladani, Jatin G Bhatt, Jignesh P Dave, Siddharth Jindal*, Devendrakumar Rathore

Department of General Surgery, P.D.U. Govt. Medical College and Civil Hospital; Rajkot

Abstract

A peritoneal simple mesothelial cyst is a very rare mesenteric cyst. Though the lesion being generally asymptomatic, it usually ranges between a few centimeters to 10 cm; however, occasionally it presents with various, non-specific symptoms, which makes correct pre-operative diagnosis difficult. We present a case of a giant peritoneal simple mesothelial cyst that was successfully managed by complete surgical excision without any known intra and post operative surgical complications.

Biography:

Dr. Siddharth is currently serves as an Associate Professor; Department of General Surgery, P.D.U. Govt. Medical College and Civil Hospital; Rajkot

Speaker Publications:

1. Ear keloid excision by CO₂ laser; Researchgate
2. Oral and cutaneous presentations and outcome in Stevens Johnson Syndrome at tertiary care hospital; Research gate

3rd World Congress on Surgeons; June 25-26, 2020, Webinar.

Abstract Citation:

Siddharth Jindal, A rare case of giant lower abdominal swelling diagnosed as peritoneal simple mesothelial cyst, 3rd World Congress on Surgeons; June 25-26, 2020, Webinar.